Mrs. Pauline Steinem of Toledo, Ohio, explained the work of the International Council of Women.

Senator Sherman's Views.

Senator Sherman caused much laughter when he arose to speak by saying:: "Alfragette." He declared there was nothing revolutionary about the woman suffrage movement, and that he was perfectly willing to have their co-operation behave themselves," he continued. "Out vote, but because they control the people one or more men.'

Launching into a discussion of the child question, he declared it could not be solved until women had something to do with its solution. "We've been obliged to call upon the women for help," he The senator declared that there was nothing as cheap in the world today as human life. He said the government was not instituted for the protection of property, but for the protection of persons, and that the protection of property was a secondary matter. After telling of the increased tendency to separate domestic relations, which caused many little children to be thrown upon their own resources at tender ages, he declared it was the first duty of the chance in the world. He expressed his sorrow at having to confess that it has not done so and said that the government is sadly deficient that does not give the unfortunate children a chance with other children of the community. He declared, however, that the care of dependent children was primarily a state undertaking.

Parental Co-Operation Needed.

Miss Gardner said that when the mother's sense of responsibility, and her power of supervision shall no longer end at the front door, or at the back gate, childhood will have gained its most powerful protector and vice will have withdrawn from the family altar. Asserting that it was not fair to throw this entire burden on the men, she declared: "I have little patience with the shrinking sisterhood opposed to woman suffrage, when they insist that they do not want civic duties thrust upon them. They do not want the burden of helping the fathers to rid political and social life of the wrongs and advices and dangers that beset the developing boy and girl at every step, the moment they pass outside the walls of home. They do not want to help to make the world a better and safer place for children to live in. They object to the heavy, added burden of care and responsibility. They want to just stay at home 'and nurse the little ones and care for the ailing.' That women should stop shirking their sort are a little out of the ordinary line, and the academy helps the work from Gardner. She said men and women

Wife of Slain Tailor Employs Counsel-Nurnberg, Her Friend, Held.

CHICAGO, April 17 .- Members of the police department planned rapid work today in the investigation in the murder of George Dietz, woman's tailor, found slain in his home last Monday. George Nurnberg, a harness maker, whose friendship for Mrs. Dietz has been disheld and Mrs. Dietz's home is guarded by detectives. Coroner Hoffman expects to conclude the inquest today, while officials, it is said, plan to make an important arrest after the coroner's jury has returned its verdict.

The coroner's action in holding the inquest today instead of April 24, the date 0 ----at first set, is said to be due to the demand of the police, who are anxious to hold several suspects now either in custody or under surveillance.

Mrs. Dietz has employed an attorney and planned to confer with him before the close of the day. She will be given an opportunity to tell her story to the oroner's jury according to the present plans. Early in the day, following a visit y Lieut. Ernest Mueller to the Summerdale station, where Nurnberg is held, it was rumored that the handkerchief which was tied to the heavy hammer found in Dietz's bedroom had been identified by the prisoner. Lieut. Mueller refused to discuss the report. Added interest was given to the inquest when Coroner Hoffman announced that Mrs. Nurnberg had been added to the list of witnesses.
